THE DANGER OF USING LUBRICANTS WHICH DON'T MEET OEM SPECIFICATIONS

Save £0.85 on a service, spend hundreds putting it right!
Invalidate the vehicle or replacement part warranty!

The automotive aftermarket garage is constantly inundated with lubricant products boasting OEM applications on the label. Unfortunately, some of these oils may not meet the actual OEM specification required, as they are blended to, "performs to the level of" or are, "suitable for vehicles out of warranty". For true protection and performance, check that your lubricant meets the OEM specification under Block Exemption law and will maintain the vehicle's warranty, and the warranty on any replacement parts.

Ask for the product's "Quality Guarantee / Block Exemption Guarantee".
